Introduction

Slickerology is the new religion for people living a slick & smooth life, meaning they don't apologise for just being themselves and leading their own way or path through life. The Slicker(adherent of Slickerology), defines for themselves what luxury means to them, which is the main focus of our religion.

Read on to learn more about this way of life, and as you read along, you will understand the individual aspects of Slickerology.

The Slick Life

A smooth and slick life is determined by the individual Slicker's personal level of luxury. Luxury is living comfortably with yourself and who you are, in it's basic sense. But luxury is more personal to a Slicker than what is defined in a traditional dictionary. Sometimes just loving yourself, or simply being, high on life is luxury to a Slicker. Maybe luxury is more complex to another Slicker, such as planning ahead and learning all there is to know in life.

Being smooth & slick means something entirely different to us Slickers. We don't generally encourage lying to people, scamming or conning them out of their money. Sure, there may be some Slickers who may take advantage of people, because that is how they are true to themselves, and that is the way they may want to live in luxury. But being slick doesn't have to be dishonesty or disloyalty. We generally promote being true to ourselves, to not apologise for doing what we feel is right no matter what adversity stands in our way, and we lead our own paths, letting our hearts be our only leaders.

Who are we?

Slickers are people who adhere to the religion, philosophy, or way of life that we call, Slickerology. Slickers lead their own paths, which is their way of living in luxury. Our only leaders are our hearts. We follow our hearts and we don't lie to ourselves, although lying to others may sometimes be necessary, we generally promote honesty, integrity and loyalty.

Slickers live to achieve a life of ultimate luxury, to live the way we want and to be comfortable with ourselves. We want to live in harmony with what we preach and how we behave, so that we will always feel fulfilled and we want to keep achieving no matter what!

Luxury and stuff

As you have read so far, luxury is living comfortably, no matter how much money you have, or whether you live rich or poor. Luxury is being comfortable with who you are, the way you present yourself to the world, and you must define for yourself what luxury means to you personally.

To me, luxury is having enough, being enough, and to just enjoy all of life's blessings no matter how big or small. I just want to achieve and I want to be proud of all my accomplishments!

Join us!

If Slickerology is right for you, feel free to follow and adhere to our religion! Our religion is open to all people of all ages. If you're not sure you want to be a Slicker, then feel free to take away from Slickerology what you need and add it on to your own beliefs. We accept all people, whether they are Slickers or not, so we see no problem with other religions and ways of life, or beliefs.
